(because it could not have been possible, that the earthly Premananda known to us should have known the warder by name) and so the warder came and opened the gates for them, which when done, they both went out and breathed the breath of life once more so to say in their own normal plane.

We had had no conversations between us that time, but only recognised each other from a distance.

VII.

As I was keeping in hospital for some time in the usual way, the Dy. Superintendent came one evening and called on me; he had some more visitors also that came with him to see me. "Look here, Mr. Dutt, can you recognise them? he asked, pointing to the other visitors that came with him. I looked around and saw greatly to my astonishment and surprise, the figures of my revered parents with him. What undreamed of blessing, it was to me, to meet them there, quite unexpectedly so to say,

after years of separation, my readers can well
